

WASH. ATHLETICS RAYLEW ELEVEN

Farmer, Tew, and Morris
Are Stars for Winning Team.

In a hard and roughly played game at Fifth and L streets southeast, this morning the Farmington Athletic Club defeated the Raylew Athletic Club eleven, by 17 to 0.

The game was poorly played throughout, and many penalties were inflicted for slugging. Raylew opened the game, kicking to Ridenour, who ran for twenty-five yards. Farmer was pushed over for the first touchdown. McCaffrey kicked a beautiful goal.

In the second half Farmer made another touchdown, and McCaffrey kicked another goal. About ten minutes before the end, Fullback Williams scored the third tally, but McCaffrey failed to get the goal.

CALEDONIANS LOSE IN GAME OF SOCCER

Baltimore Team Defeats
Washington Eleven at Union Park, 6 to 1.

The Sons of St. George soccer team, of Baltimore, made it three straight over the Caledonian team of this city at Union League Park this morning, winning in two forty-five minute halves by a score of 6 to 1.

With a strong wind blowing continually in their faces the St. George players kept the ball far down in their opponents' territory throughout both halves. After fifteen minutes of play, Downey, veteran left wing for the visitors, landed the ball between the posts for the first score of the game.

Caledonian came back strong and evened up matters in the next five minutes. From then on, however, the Baltimoreans had things pretty much their own way and when the whistle sounded the conclusion of the first half the score stood 3 to 1 in favor of the Sons of St. George.

Lining up for the second half, with the strong wind at their backs the winners simply walked away from the local aggregation and with the exception of the first few minutes always kept the ball in dangerous territory. The efforts of Goal-Keeper Ramsey kept the visitors' score within its narrow margin.

Lawson and Howard, the two giant backs of the winners, were by far the most aggressive players in the game and kept their forwards busy by their fast and accurate returns. Douglas and Morrison easily outshone the other members of the vanquished outfit.

A crowd of about 500 witnessed the contest. Line-up and summary:

Caledonian. Sons of St. George.

ROSEBERY'S VOICE SOBERS ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 25.—When the house of lords reconvened today for the further consideration of the budget the big topic on all tongues was the declaration of Lord Rosebery in his speech yesterday, when he insisted England was facing the gravest crisis in its history since 1832.

Coming from the "man without a party," who has been the biggest figure in English politics since the death of Gladstone and the collapse of Joseph Chamberlain, his fervid declaration has caused all England to halt for a moment, and it is plain that for the first time the country realizes just what the rejection of the budget by the lords will entail.

His warning to the lords that the rejection of the budget was a "challenge to uncontrolled and uncontrolled radicalism," with the ultimate outcome impossible to forecast, has had the effect of sobering the conservatives who have heretofore looked at some difficulty on the suggestion that the house of lords has outlived its usefulness, and they are asking all the while why is it that if the people will uphold the Liberal program when the general elections are held.

COMMERCE COUNCIL WANTS A SECRETARY

The National Council of Commerce, organized during the administration of Oscar S. Straus as Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor, is without a chairman or a secretary. Gustave Schwab recently resigned as chairman, and William B. Corwin, the former secretary, has gone to New York to engage in business.

These places will probably both be filled at the meeting of the council which will convene at the Secretary's office December 1. Some difficulty is being experienced in persuading a suitable man to take the position. About all the active work of the council falls on him.

BARNETT A LOTHARIO, DECLARES HIS WIFE

One of His Many Sweethearts Writes, "Ocean Full of Love and a Kiss in Every Wave," and Naturally Mrs. Barnett Gets Peevish.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—When Mrs. Percy Barnett was forced to have her husband arraigned in Harlem court to be relieved from her present destitute circumstances a dozen letters were read by her counsel as tending to show Barnett had many women friends.

Some of the letters were from actresses, and one was apparently from a school teacher in Pottsville, Pa. Most of them purported to be written by Vera, Verona, and Jennie M., with an occasional one from Henrietta, a stage-struck young person. Mrs. Barnett said she had found the letters in her husband's pocket.

One from Vera, who also sent two or three pictures, was read as follows: "I do love you, and have for four long years. Well, my dear, I have written quite a letter for me just now, and my arm aches very much, but I can't help it, I am writing to the one I 'Love,' 'Love,' 'Love.'"

A letter written a month later, August, 1908, was from Verona. This ended with this sentiment:

"Well, dear, mother is waiting for me to go up town with her, so I will close, with an ocean full of love and a kiss in every wave."

Another letter in the same hand, with "lots of love and kisses," written a week earlier, and signed "Verona A. Peck."

LENGTHY PROGRAM IN TAFT'S MESSAGE

President Has Formidable Array of Legislation to Lay Before Congress.

President Taft's message to Congress is still in large part to be written, according to authority which is referred to by the press, but the President knows pretty accurately what he wants to say, and just what he is going to talk about.

It is expected that the message will contain more matter in less space than any like message in many years. It is to be short; that is, short in proportion to the number of recommendations and their great importance, and it is the understanding that it will not attempt to outline anything like details of legislation, leaving all that for Congress in its wisdom.

Further than this, the paramount issue, the one of the greatest emphasis will be laid, will be, it is declared, the establishment of control over capitalization of great corporations. This subject the President regards as of prime importance, and members of Congress who are arriving in town understand that it will be given the place of honor and command in the program.

Subordinate to this will be the various other matters which it has been expected will deal, such as conservation, reorganization of the interstate commerce law, amendment of the Sherman law, perhaps a system of Federal license for interstate corporations, economy in national expenditure, currency reform, and numerous other issues of the first class. The President has a vast program to lay before Congress, and it is an impressive fact that almost all of the arriving statesmen expects an important accomplishment this session.

Various other subjects are advanced as depressed feeling. The fact that the dominating organizations in both houses of Congress will be opposed to effective accomplishment, a most common complaint as the reason for a hopeless feeling.

The success with which the Senate leadership held its grip of the tariff gives. They think the long session will be like the tariff session; it will be controlled so firmly that it will do no more than the leaders wish.

In the first place, everybody is figuring on the committee of House and Senate, one committee which is regarded as a mystery is that of the House on Interstate Commerce. It may prove a good deal more independent than has been expected. But Senator James R. Mann, of Illinois, in command is widely regarded as the guarantee that Cannon knew no more of the committee's action than he did of the belief is expressed in many, that the proposal for a new court of interstate commerce appeals may be formulated into a bill and passed beyond this not much of importance is expected at the conclusion of the session.

The success of a measure for control of capitalization is anticipated by almost nobody. Neither the House nor the Senate committee advanced as regarded at all likely to report such a measure, and little La Follette, Dilliver, and others are credited with little to carry out the project. It is feared that they will be referred to committees in which they will die.

By way of encouraging the easy application of menacing legislation of progressive character there are promises of ample troubles from the very beginning of the session. Investigations, in the nature of the insurgent fight for control of the House, and the progressive struggle for more power in the Senate—these are all expected to develop situations which will become spectacular and sensational as hoped for by the legislative session.

The whole session will be as full of political as an egg of hen. The old Constitution will provide inspiration for endless conversation. It will be clear that everything that may be proposed, and it will furnish pretext for votes against all kinds of proposals.

Recognition of this situation gives the color of discouragement and depression to the expressions of almost all the public men who would really like to see accomplishment. They do not believe that anything is determined by the breach between the White House and the Republican leaders on Capitol Hill will accomplish results; and they do not believe that anything is determined by the breach between the White House and the Republican leaders on Capitol Hill will accomplish results; and they do not believe that anything is determined by the breach between the White House and the Republican leaders on Capitol Hill will accomplish results.

Until Senator Aldrich permits his program to be known, however, nobody will be able to do more than guess how the session's time is to be spent. It is the great function of Aldrich to provide the themes of harmless conversation for Senators, and to engineer those themes may consume just as much time as they seem necessary to prevent anything being done.

The ship subsidy is looked upon as a very likely stop-gap for the session, in the Senate. Everybody thinks it is going to become law this time, even its bitterest opponents.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES HOLD CELEBRATIONS

Thanksgiving Services Mark
Holiday in Alexandria.
Stores Close Early.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU,
ALEXANDRIA, VA., NOV. 25.

Thanksgiving Day is being celebrated in Alexandria more generally than for many years. The churches have been marked by special gatherings of families, and has been kept as a holiday.

The schools closed yesterday afternoon and will not reopen until next Monday morning. The postoffice kept Sunday hours and the banks and city offices were closed all day. Most of the retail stores closed their doors at noon.

Union Thanksgiving service was held at the Second Presbyterian Church this morning. Those taking part were the two Baptist, the Southern Methodist, the Trinity Methodist, the Methodist, the Episcopal, and the Catholic churches here this morning.

The burning of a couch at the home of Percy Clift, superintendent of the Alexandria and Mt. Vernon Railway Company, near Alfred street, this morning called out the entire fire department. The couch was extinguished with little damage. An oil stove is thought to have been the cause.

Mrs. Emma Riley, and Jackson N. Nails, both of this city, were quietly married at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church South last evening. The Rev. C. D. Bulla, pastor of that church, officiated.

William Roy Winston and Miss Daisy Virginia Pierpont, daughter of Mrs. Virginia R. Pierpont, were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. King street, last evening. The Rev. William Pierpont, a brother of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Miss Lena May Cronk and Andrew W. Ballard were married yesterday evening. They will make their home in this city.

Miss Leo Lynch, of Manassas, and William Clisholm, of this city, were married at the home of the bride in Manassas today. The Rev. Father Patrick performed the ceremony.

Miss Mary Anstis Dent and Roderick Alphonse Parker, of Prince George's county, Md., were married at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. E. G. Muchmore, at 1010 South Royal street, yesterday evening. The Rev. H. J. Cutler, of St. Mary's Church, performed the ceremony.

A meeting of Fitzgerald Council, No. 2, Knights of Columbus, was held at St. Mary's Hall, in South Royal street, yesterday evening. The second degree of the order was conferred upon a class of candidates.

It was reported today that the seals would probably be left on for several weeks. If this is true, every one of the bodies in the mine will probably be incinerated.

Thanksgiving Day, instead of being a day of joy and merriment is one of deep sadness. With the work and covering the bodies stopped, temporarily at least, the authorities devoted most of their energies today to an effort to provide for the further needs of the stricken of the city.

Nurses went from house to house distributing food and clothing, and attending to the sick. All business is at a standstill. The storekeepers have lost heart, and it was predicted that two weeks from now not a single person who lives here will remain in the village.

A general exodus is looked for. Already a number of families have prepared to move, and several merchants have announced that they will transfer stocks of goods to other mining towns in the vicinity.

When the Cherry mine does open it will very probably be with an entirely new force of men to dig and hoist the coal.

MINER MEETS DEATH BY FALL INTO SHAFT

Workman at Dunmore Drops More Than Quarter of Mile Onto Head.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 25.—Adam Weingart, thirty-five years old, of Dunmore, met a horrible death when he slipped at the mouth of the old Leggett Creek shaft and tumbled head first, a distance of 260 feet, into the mine.

When picked up by fellow-workers, Weingart was a lifeless mass. Almost every body in the vicinity was informed of the accident. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital this morning for the purpose of assisting the surgeons who will perform the difficult operation of setting the boy's vertebrae in place in a few days.

The boy is the son of Frank Herbert, at Virginia avenue and Twenty-second street northwest, who was killed by falling fifteen feet from the top of a tree.

Striking flat on his back, the boy was unconscious for a long time. He was finally taken to the hospital, where it was decided that his back is broken. The lower portion of his body seems paralyzed.

COMPANIES ENTER PILE OF DANGER

Reason for Non-Equipment With Fenders.

Danger of derailment while traveling at high rates of speed is the formal objection which the Washington, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon Railway and the Great Falls and Old Dominion Railway Companies make to the carrying out of the order issued by the District Electric Railway Commission that all street cars operated in the District, other than trailers, be equipped with automatic or platform-operated pick-up fenders and wheel guards not more than four inches

When the order went into effect November 1 the companies refused to comply with it and have not done so since. Yesterday they were granted a hearing before the District Electric Railway Commission to explain why. Representatives of both companies were present and went into the details of the proposition.

It was pointed out that the automatic fenders and wheel guards are impracticable for suburban use, for the reason that they would be forced down close to the track on sharp turns, which would result frequently in derailing the cars.

The commission, it is expected, will make a decision within the next few days, either modifying the order or requiring that it be complied with by the companies.
